IRIS

—||—||—||—||—

The hand of the hybridizer has wrought a most wonderful change in the iris: New color combinations, improved form, larger flowers with more substance, etc., until now it is probably our most popular garden flower.

This list, though small, contains some of the finest in cultivation—all rating high.

In the following collections will be found some of the world's best, so reasonably priced as to make a strong appeal for their possession.

All prices quoted are prepaid. Shipments will be made during July and August. Good strong rhizomes will be sent, properly labeled and packed, insuring their starting into vigorous growth when planted.

Terms: Cash with order, or a deposit of 25% will hold till shipment when order will be sent C. O. D. for balance.

All varieties are true to name, but should any prove untrue I will gladly replace two for one.

DUTCH IRISES

These irises are grown from bulbs which must be planted in the fall, same as tulips. They are larger and earlier than the Spanish irises, their blooming period immediately following the Darwin tulips. The flowers are beardless and of great substance, making them ideal for cutting as well as very decorative in the garden.

ANEMONES

The world's finest strain of St. Brigid anemones. Wonderful, large, double and semi-double flowers, in the most striking colors; running the gamut from purple and blues through lavenders and pinks to the most vivid reds and scarlets. They bloom very early in the spring when flowers are scarce and continue on into the early summer when the foliage dies and the bulbs can be lifted, dried off and replanted in the fall, or spring, or they can be left in the ground for next year's bloom. The flowers are excellent for cutting, lasting a long time.

Price, postpaid, $1.50 per dozen.

DELPHINIUM

New crop seed from selected plants of Blackmore and Langdon's celebrated strain. Large, beautiful blue and mauve flowers, single, semi-double and double, on tall stems.

Early fall planting will produce plants to bloom next year.

Packet of 200 seeds, $1.00 postpaid.
